

Savor traditional Japanese cooking

Guests will be served wild sansai vegetables and home grown vegetables using age-old Japanese recipes. There are activities (at an extra fee) where you can forage wild sansai vegetables or learn how to cook the local specialties. If you understand Japanese, you can have a storytelling time with the owner as she spins tales of folklore. During winter, try riding on a snowmobile.

You can heard the pleasant sounds of a babbling stream at a distance

There are two lodging areas- The Omoya main building and the Hanare annex. Behind the Hanare cottage is a babbling stream so you can listen to the relaxing sounds of nature. Both buildings have an irori hearth.

Yamagata Prefecture Green Tourism Promotion Council

This Association is a cooperative venue which disseminates information on the charm of farmhouse inns with enthusiastic owners to many people. The association provides information of accommodations that provide activities unique to Yamagata prefecture and gives guests an opportunity to interact with the locals. They hope you will find an inn you can call your second home from among the variety of farmhouse inns.
