A log house inn where you can feel nature at work

In a hamlet surrounded by mountains located in the Nakatsugawa basin of the Shimanto River west of Kochi prefecture, is log house farm stay inn. The building is made entirely of wood from the mountains, and there is also a wood-burning stove and an irori hearth in the room, soothing your body and soul in a calm atmosphere filled with the warmth of wood. Here you can enjoy the four seasons by just stepping out of the inn and seeing the paddy fields stretching out, playing in the river in front of the inn or taking a walk in the mountains.

We are proud of our creative dishes using local ingredients

To guide you to the forestry site and experience local food, we limit our guests to one group per day. The owner is a registered nutritionist and makes use of her knowledge to devise a nutritionally balanced meals and offers delicious dishes using local ingredients. You are free to bring your own alcohol and light snacks. Even after the meal is over, you can listen to various stories about the rural life, mountains, and cooking around the irori hearth.

Comments from the owner

In the natural surroundings of the surrounding mountains and rivers, we strive to grow delicious organic vegetables and rice in hopes to provide a meal that rejuvenates the body. I think that interacting with the locals will be a heartwarming memory of your trip.
